Santa Clara County Library Offers Free Access to Popular Software Programs Including Adobe Suite

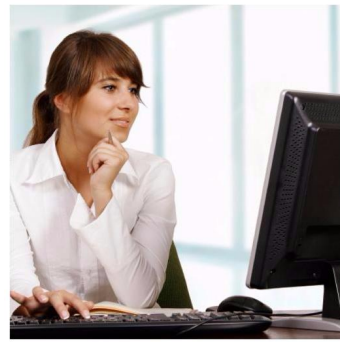

Interested in making your own films? Animations? Or maybe just want to get your family photos scanned for upcoming projects or future generations? Wherever your interests may take you, be sure they take you first to a SCCLD library. Not only have 500 new computers been installed during the month of April and awaiting you at your local SCCLD library, including the Cupertino branch, the new PCs feature faster processors, larger screens and are equipped with built in Blu-ray disc players.

Once you access the computer, we hope you'll delve a little deeper and try the newest programs added for your use. Programs such as Adobe Photoshop, Adobe Illustrator, Adobe InDesign and Adobe Animate (for creative design) are just some of the more than 20 new software programs now available for free use. Enjoy Microsoft Visual Studio (for programming), WinWay Resume Deluxe, Ultimate Phonics (adult literacy educational lessons), and Camtasia (in case you want to create online tutorials and videos) as you embark on your new creative journey.

While these programs can be too costly for the average resident to own personally, we've made it easy (and free) to use at all our libraries. Whether for personal or business ventures, the possibilities are endless.
